

Needed: Physician Peer Reviewers!

Why be a Peer Reviewer?

- Become a thought leader and educator among your peers
- Advance and improve quality of care and patient safety nationwide
- Facilitate self-improvement
- Enhance your awareness of ongoing standard of care guidelines

Why Peer Review for CIMRO?

- Personal assistance and guidance available as needed
- Company with 45 years of medical and quality review experience
- Respected nationwide company with business representation in 49 states

“The CIMRO peer review organization stands head and shoulders above any of the other peer review organizations I have worked with over the years. The thorough organization and presentation of cases to the peer reviewer, the availability of the staff for immediate consultation (even on weekends), the up-to-date and secure system for transfer of electronic medical records, as well as feedback on submitted reviews, all contribute to make working with the CIMRO team both a pleasure and an ongoing education in the peer review process.”

Lorna Wilkerson, MD

“Providing peer review allows me the opportunity to stay engaged with the most current literature and standards of care for my own practice, while helping to ensure quality patient care in other settings. It is both personally and professionally rewarding!”

Abby Litwiller, MD

Peer Reviewer Requirements

- Actively practicing at least 8 hours/month
- Board certified
- At least 2 years post-residency experience

“There are two major reasons that I value being a CIMRO reviewer. Primarily, is that I have observed the objective of the CIMRO review process to be beneficial, not punitive, towards the physicians they are reviewing. Secondly, after reviewing many of these charts, I am extremely motivated to educate myself, document more carefully, and maintain my own skills at a higher level.”

Keith Ifft, MD

If you meet the requirements above and wish to learn more about this opportunity, send an up-to-date CV to peerreview@cimro.com. We look forward to hearing from you!
